Frenkel and Gaitsgory proved that semi-infinite cohomology gives an equivalence between the theory of spherical modules of the affine Lie algebra at the critical level and modules over a commutative algebra. An important role in this equivalence is given by the computation of the semi-infinite cohomology of what they call a Weyl module. We study the case where we admit two local singularities.